

Mark W. Schleisner Biography

Mark W. Schleisner is a certified Project Manager and Business Analyst. He is currently Director and Owner of nycBizTek Consulting, a firm that resolves technical, workflow and cyber security issues for small-sized organizations. He has over a decade of project management experience in places as diverse as the American Museum of Natural History, the Continuum hospital network, and the digital ad agency HAVAS.

Mark is a member of the Project Management Institute (PMI) and has earned certification as a Project Management Professional (PMP). He has given cybersecurity lectures to numerous organizations, including the New York Academy of Medicine. He has contributed to Health IT white papers on the subject of protecting patients' medical data on wireless devices.

Mark graduated from the Weill Cornell Medical College Health IT Certificate Program, with a concentration in cybersecurity. He received his original information technology training at Columbia University, with a concentration in database management.